Fossell---Koons.

The wedding which has caused such a flutter of excitement among the younger people of our town transpired last Wednesday evening, on which oceasion the pleasant home of George W. Koons was filled almost to overflowing with a merry assembly convened to witness the marriage of his daughter Mamie to W. R. Fossell, of Chicago. There were friends from Grand Rapids, Manistee, Detroit and Kalamazoo. The rooms were fragrant with flowers, and two beautiful floral bells indicated the place reserved for the bridal party, march soon after 6 p. m.

The bride, tastefully attired in white silk, looked very charming, and Miss of stallions. Fannie Thomas, in blue silk, proved quite an ideal bridesmaid, while Fred to show our horses and make contracts. Roons, brother of the bride, acted as Accounts can be paid in hay or oats at best man for the groom.
